Should I follow this road forever?

Many events
Have taken place in my life,
Some earth shattering,
Others comparatively small.
My world seems to have changed.
I've grown older, possibly wiser,
And certainly more experienced.

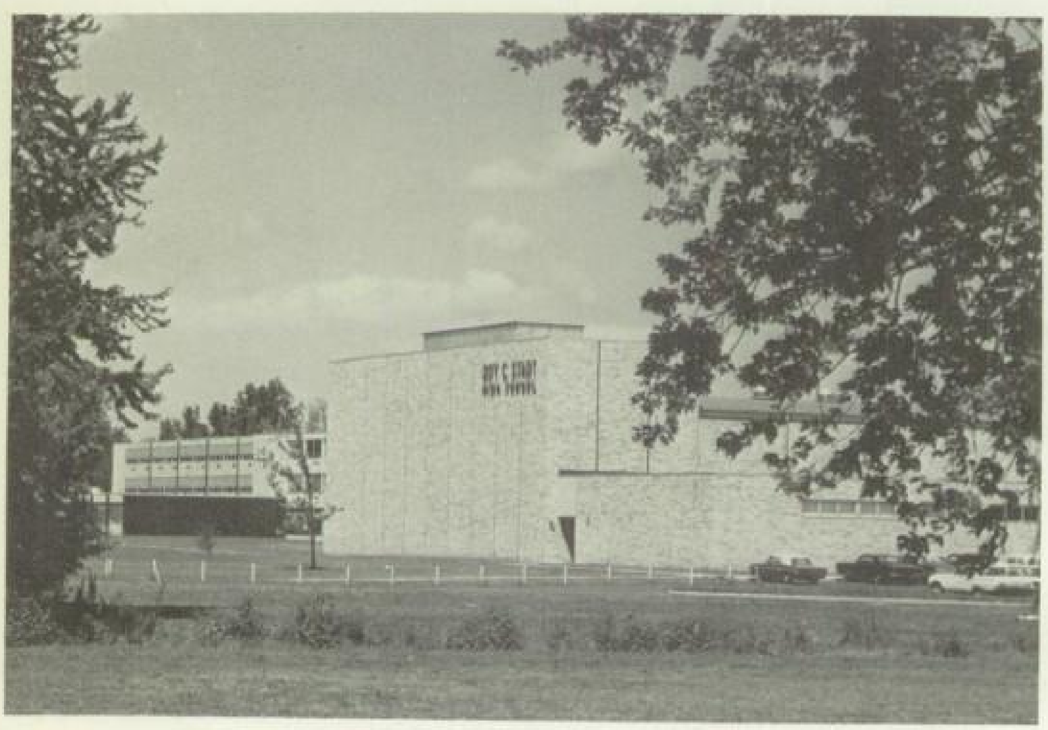

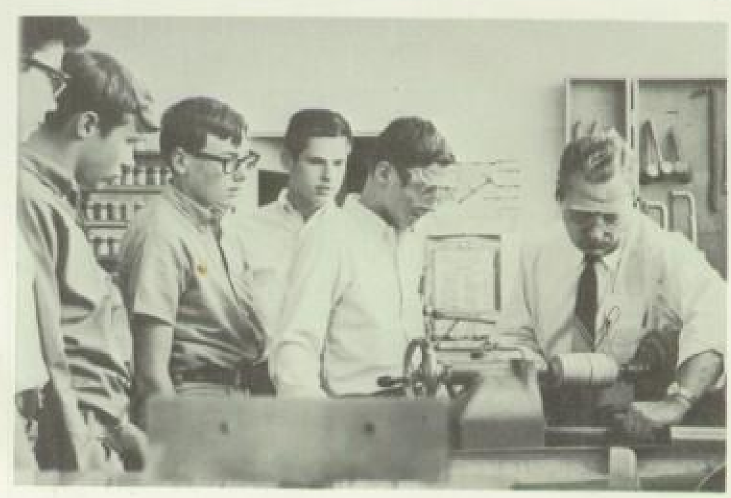

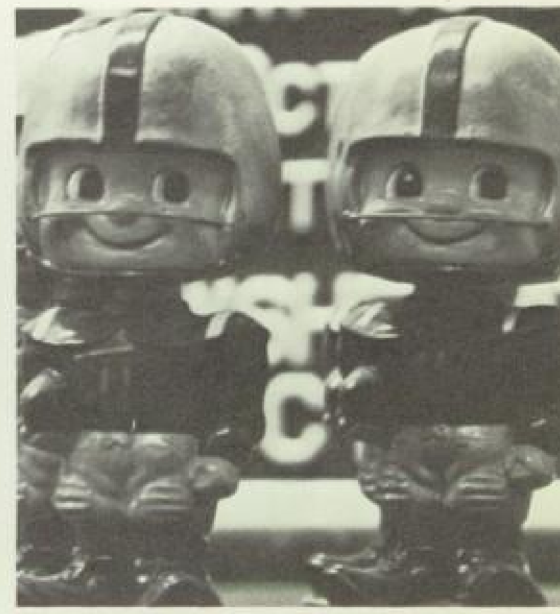

Mike,
Lots of Luck

Could become reality today.
A sudden change,
As swift and as unnoticeable
As a ray of sun.
Before your eyes
The world could change.
Keep your eyes open.

Looking forward to this for a long time.
One of the last big events of my high school days.
Staying out all night with someone you like.
Dancing, eating, bowling, kite-flying or whatever,
with someone you care for.
A night to remember
It only comes once—
I'll remember mine.

I know the world is torn by war,
And that many hungry people
Would be happy with a loaf of bread.
I've seen the poor and rundown parts
Of many thriving towns.
I know the air is filthy
And the waters more than wet.
I've heard that crime runs rampant
Through the cities and the towns.
But somehow with all its faults,
The world still looks inviting to me.
I haven't lost my secret wish to live.
I'd like to hang around awhile,
To view its beauty through the haze.

While walking down the hallways,
I try to look beyond the visages I view.
What are their problems?
Is joy felt within this soul?
Their emotions are so far below the surface
That I shall never know their true feelings.
Only the chosen are revealed.

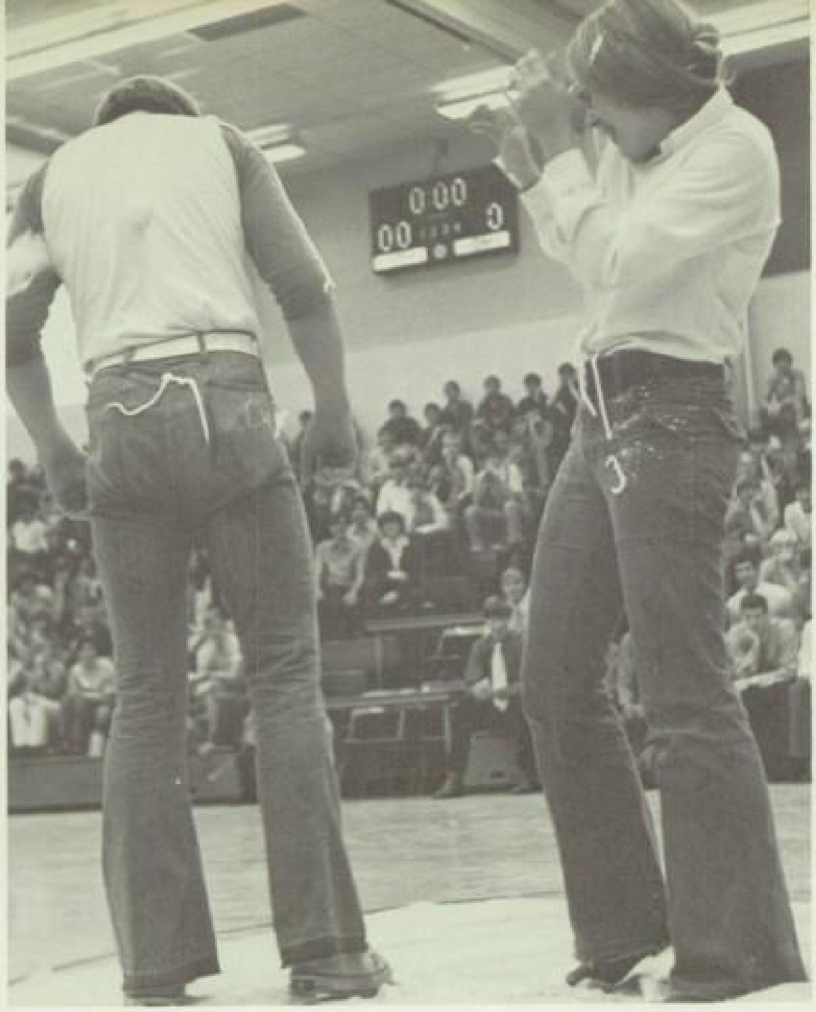

we must all come together

Rain falls,
The sun sets,
Summers turn cool.
Life goes on,
Life changes.
I know it's hard for you to change your way of life,
But it's happening.
Sooner or later
we must all come together.
If you don't, there is no life for you,
no world for me.

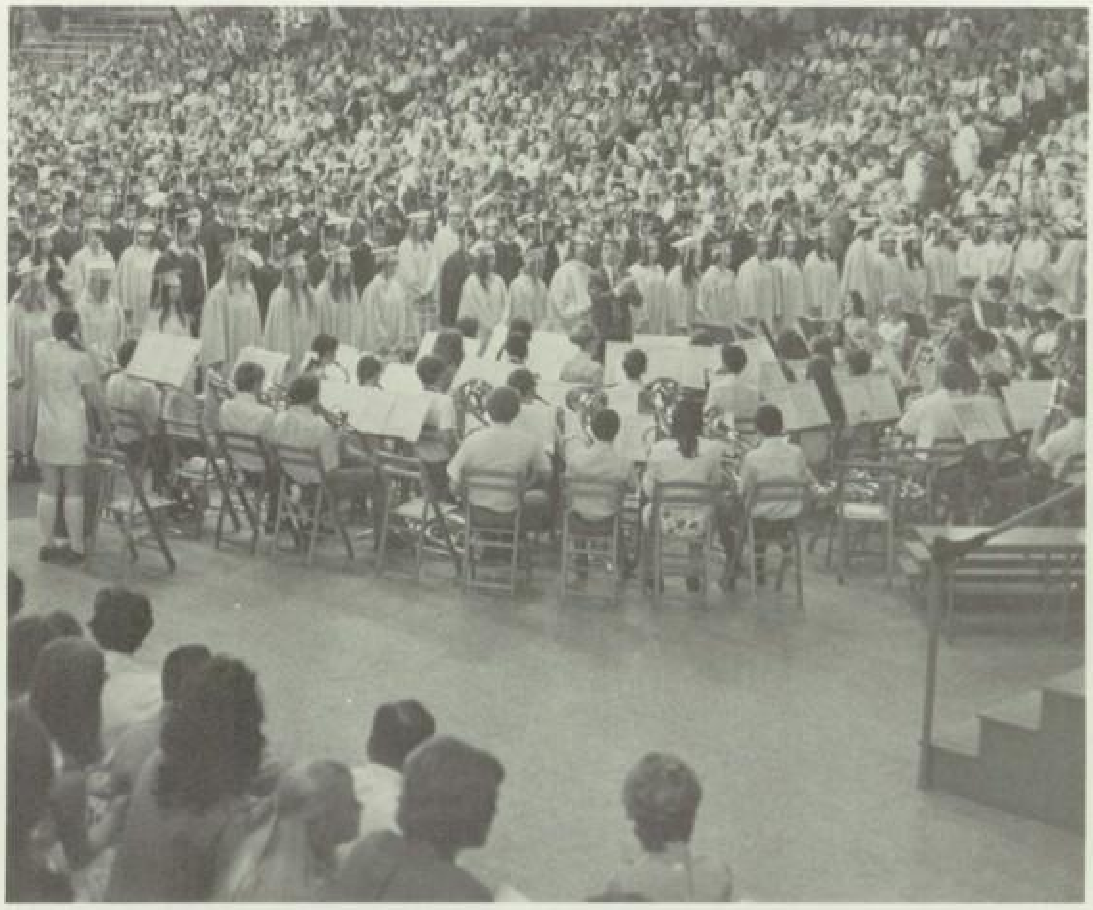

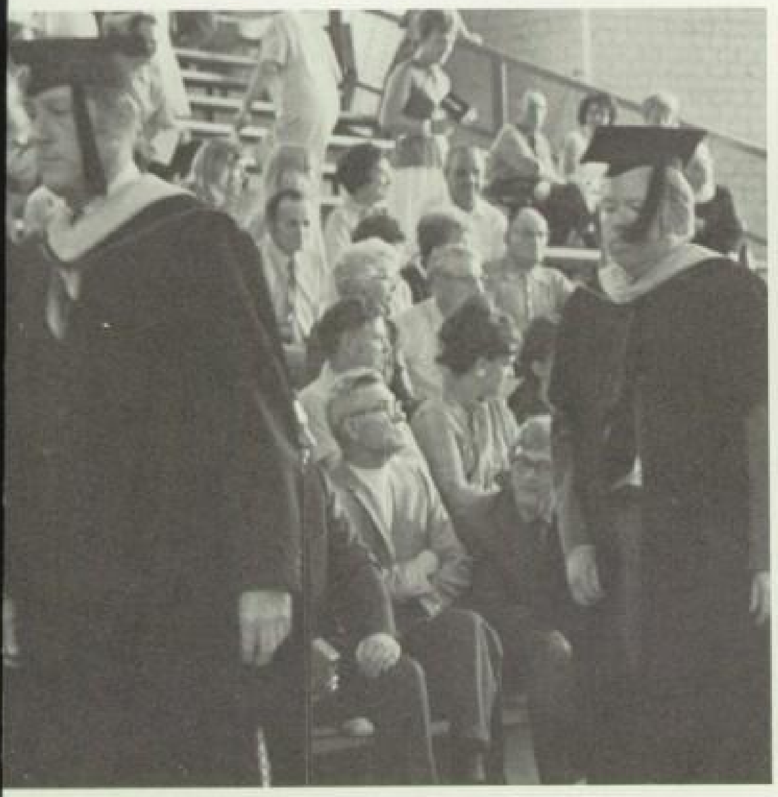

Four years have come and gone.
Tonight is an important night.
But I really don't feel that important.
Hundreds of others just like me
Are taking a big step in life.
What lies ahead?

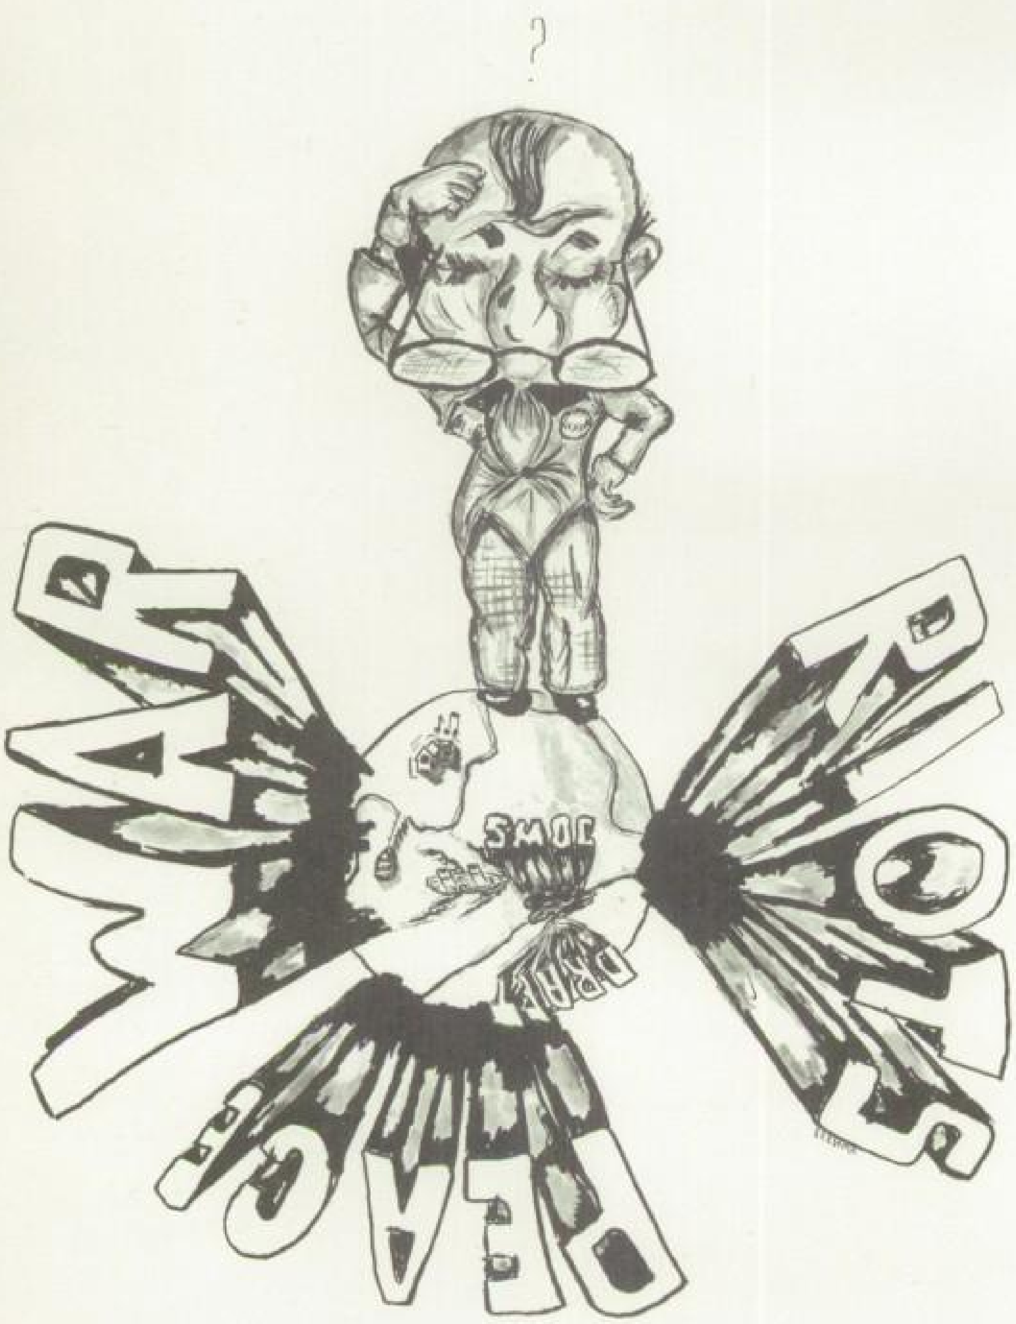

THE IRRATIONAL NET OF REALITY

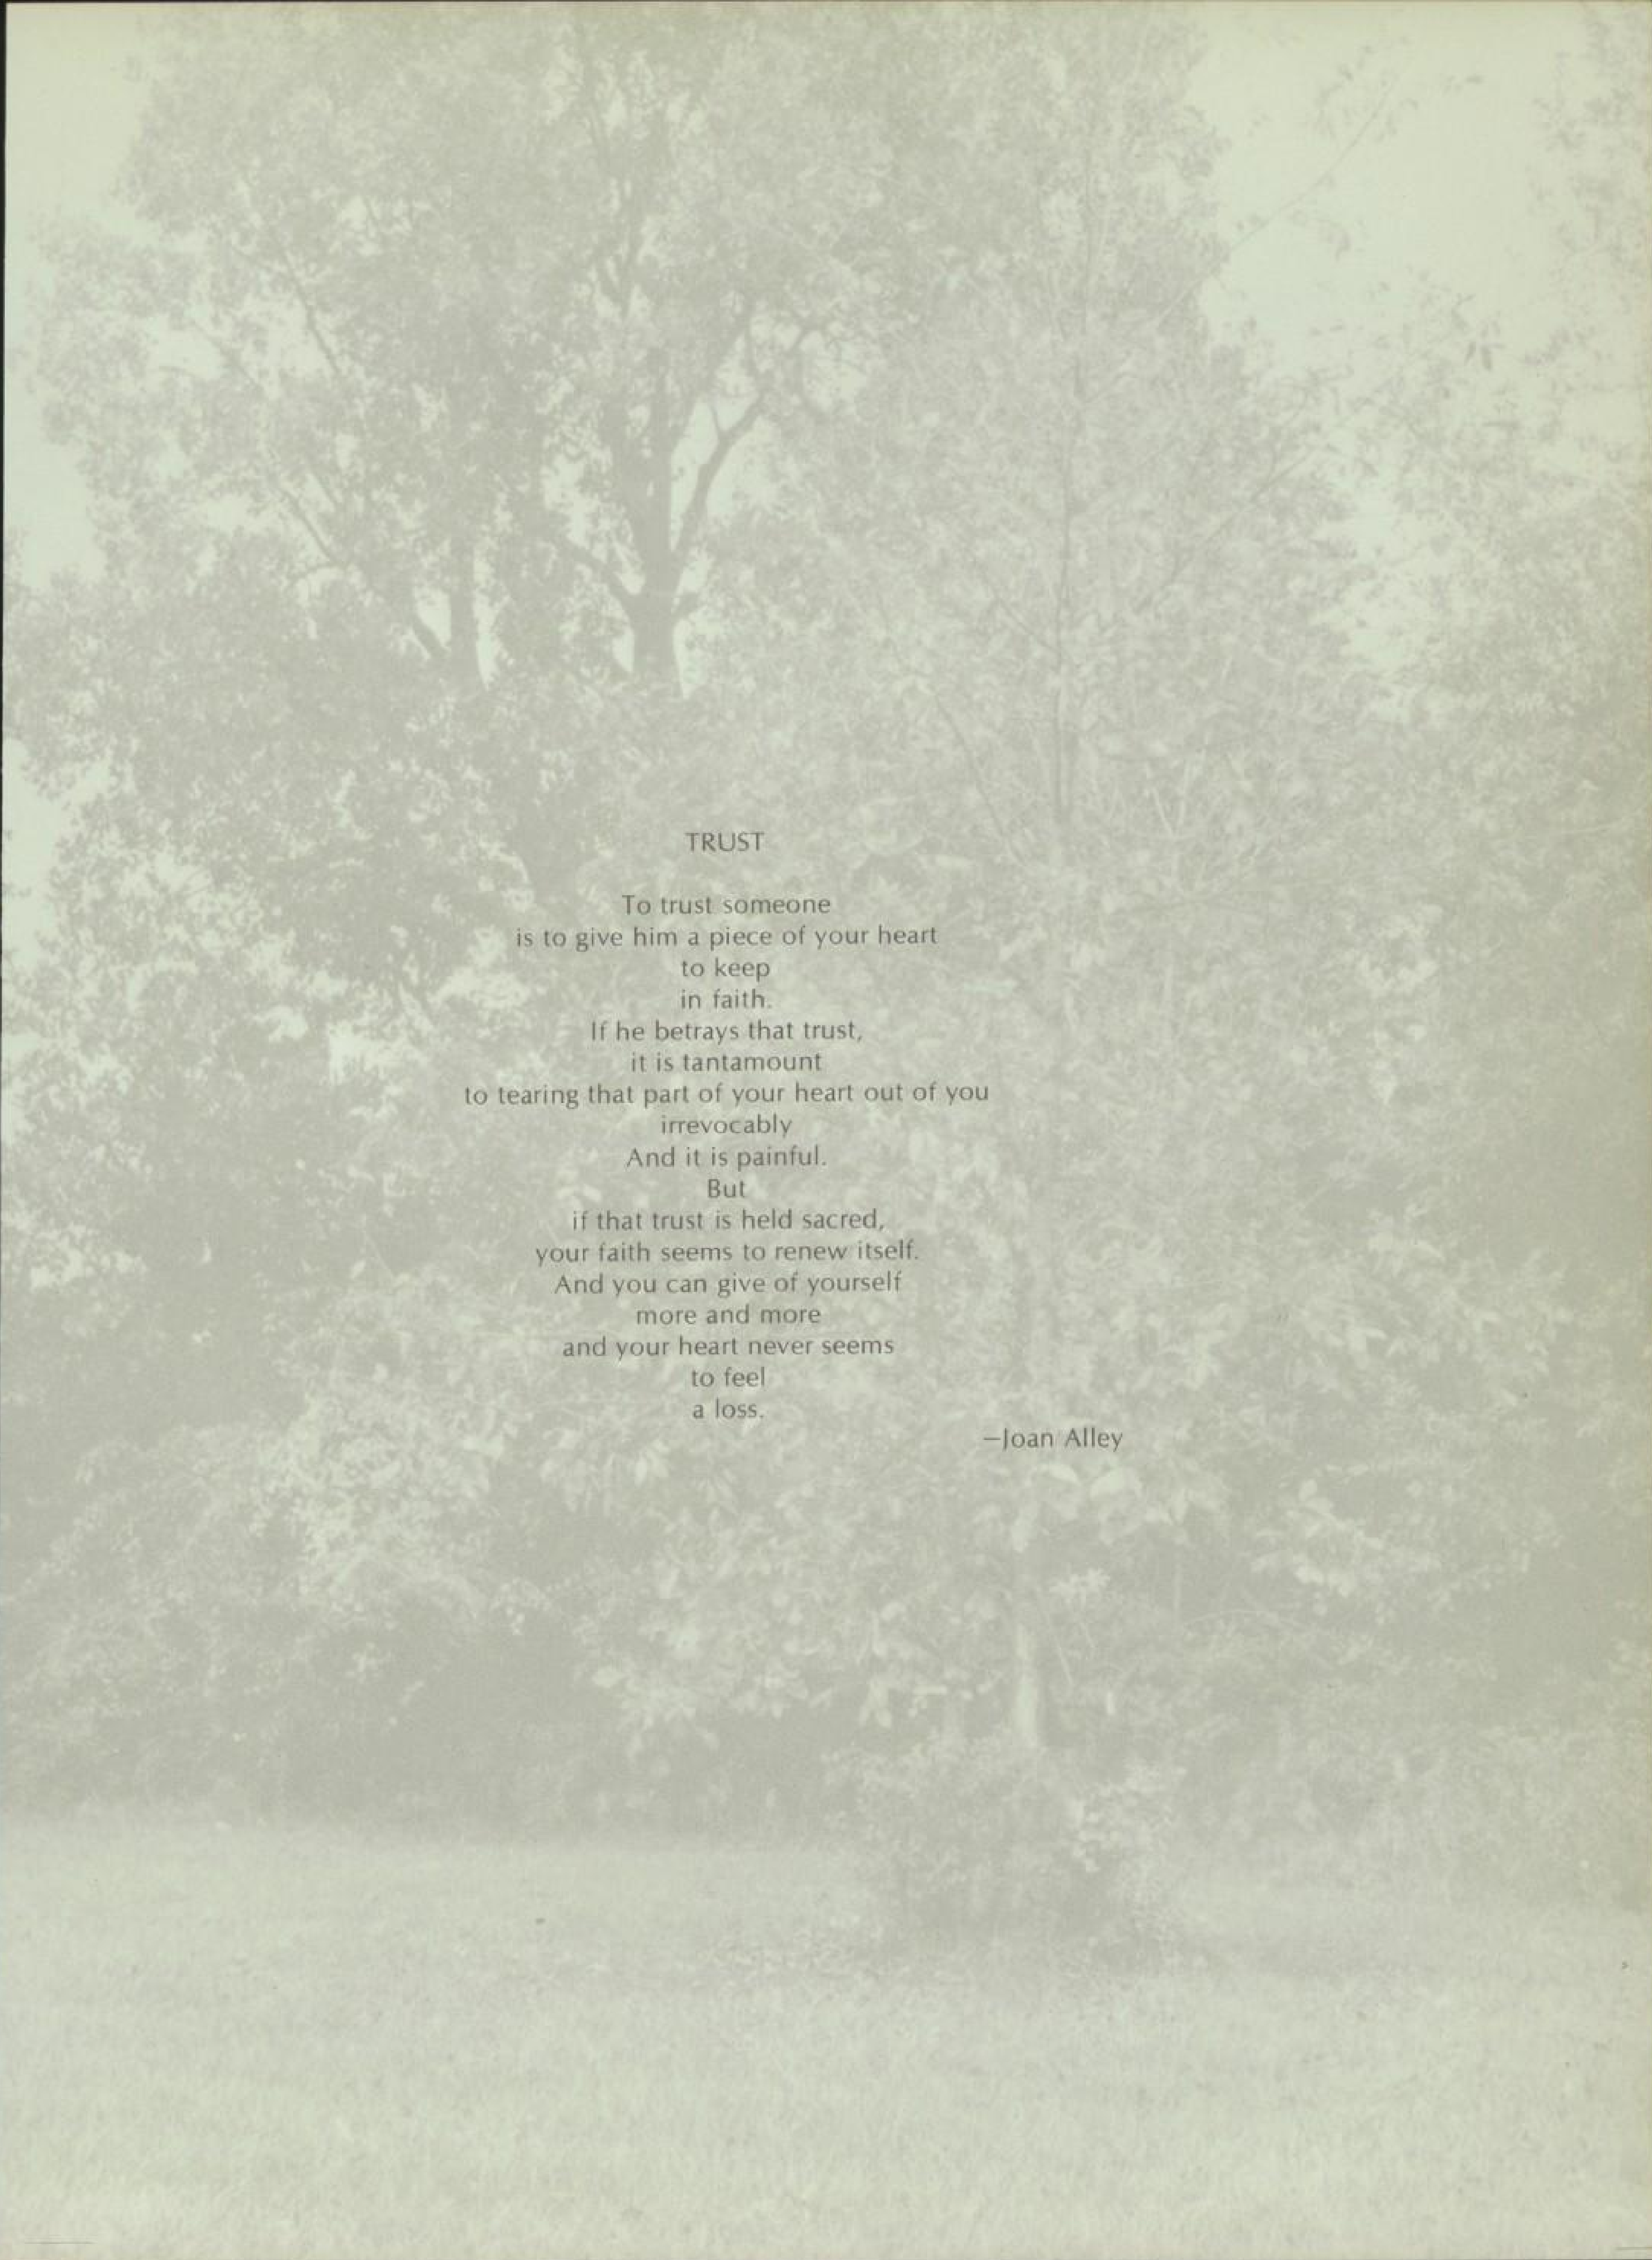

Nothing was left, but bare ground,
Like the continual loneliness in the labyrinth of sleep.
Man is forever challenging the realm of his possibilities.
Sleep now, dream on;
Don't let the passionate jaws of chance catch you awake,
For they enhance only the wonder of the imagination,
And leave the deeds for others.
The day is young, the past is forgotten.
The canyons of life are yet to be explored;
The mountains and valleys are awaiting you.
The river flows deep in its bed, waiting for the ultimate trial,
Of which we know not.
Awaken, man, awaken.
See not the mist of dew upon the pane?
If not, will the web of reality hold you in its grasp?
Think on, young man, think on.
—Fred Charpie

ALL WE NEED

Peace between people, on the earth,
Is all we'll ever need.
No fighting, war, or even hate,
To keep all people apart.
If this keeps up, at this rate,
They'll be no people left to hate!
—Denise Szykowny

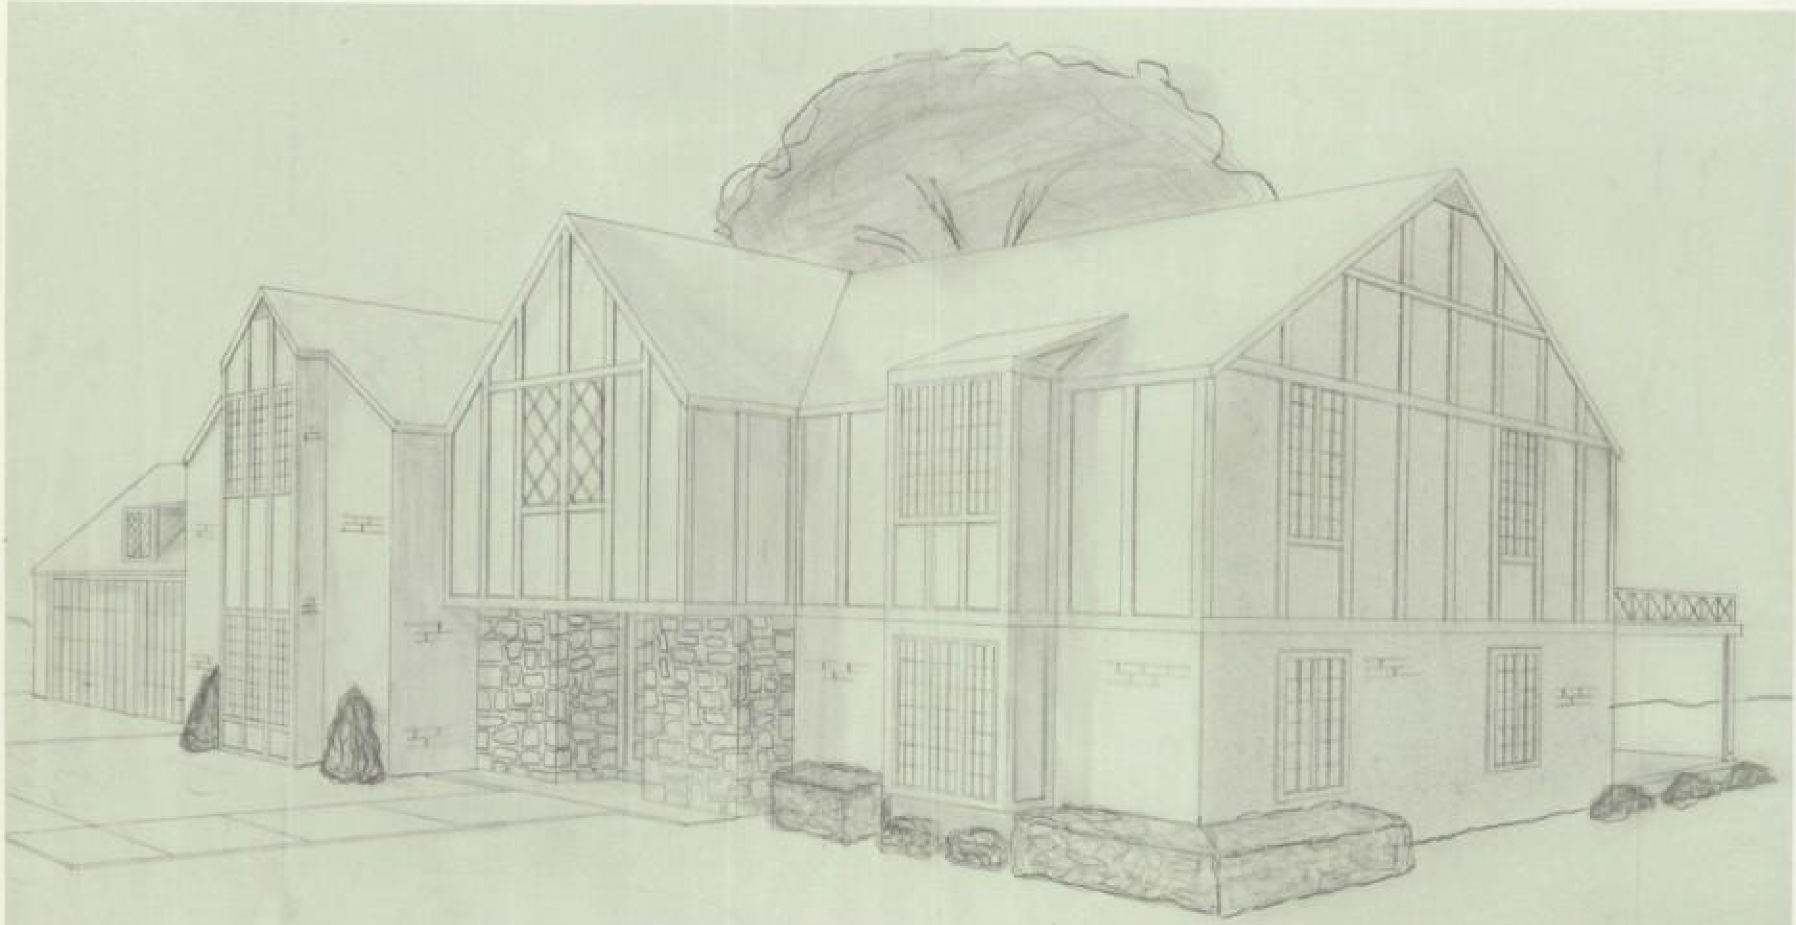

--Doug Leestma

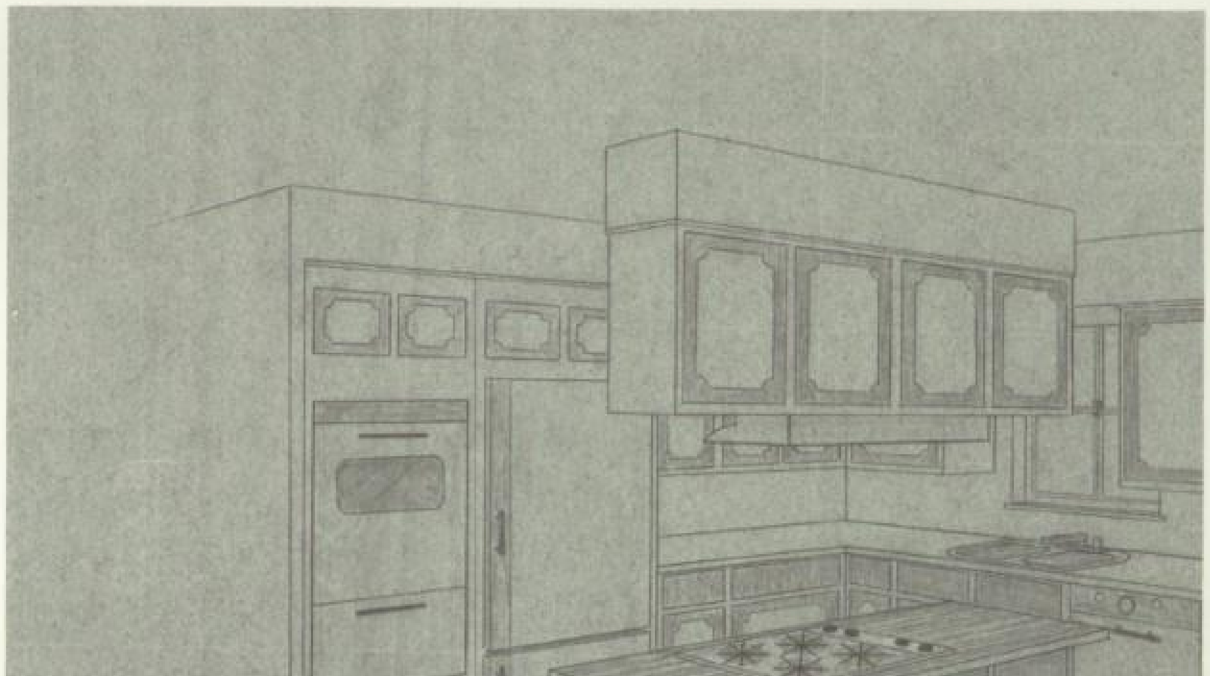

TRUST

To trust someone is to give him a piece of your heart to keep in faith.
If he betrays that trust,
it is tantamount
to tearing that part of your heart out of you irrevocably
And it is painful.
But
if that trust is held sacred,
your faith seems to renew itself.
And you can give of yourself more and more and your heart never seems to feel a loss.

I have wronged, and I am a prisoner with my own alarm,
I can see, though I am afraid, I fear the love and the harm,
How can I live today in a world that will constantly stay and still, listen, listen . . .
for the things that are important to me.
While everything captures me, I can see,
and am aware there is a new day free.

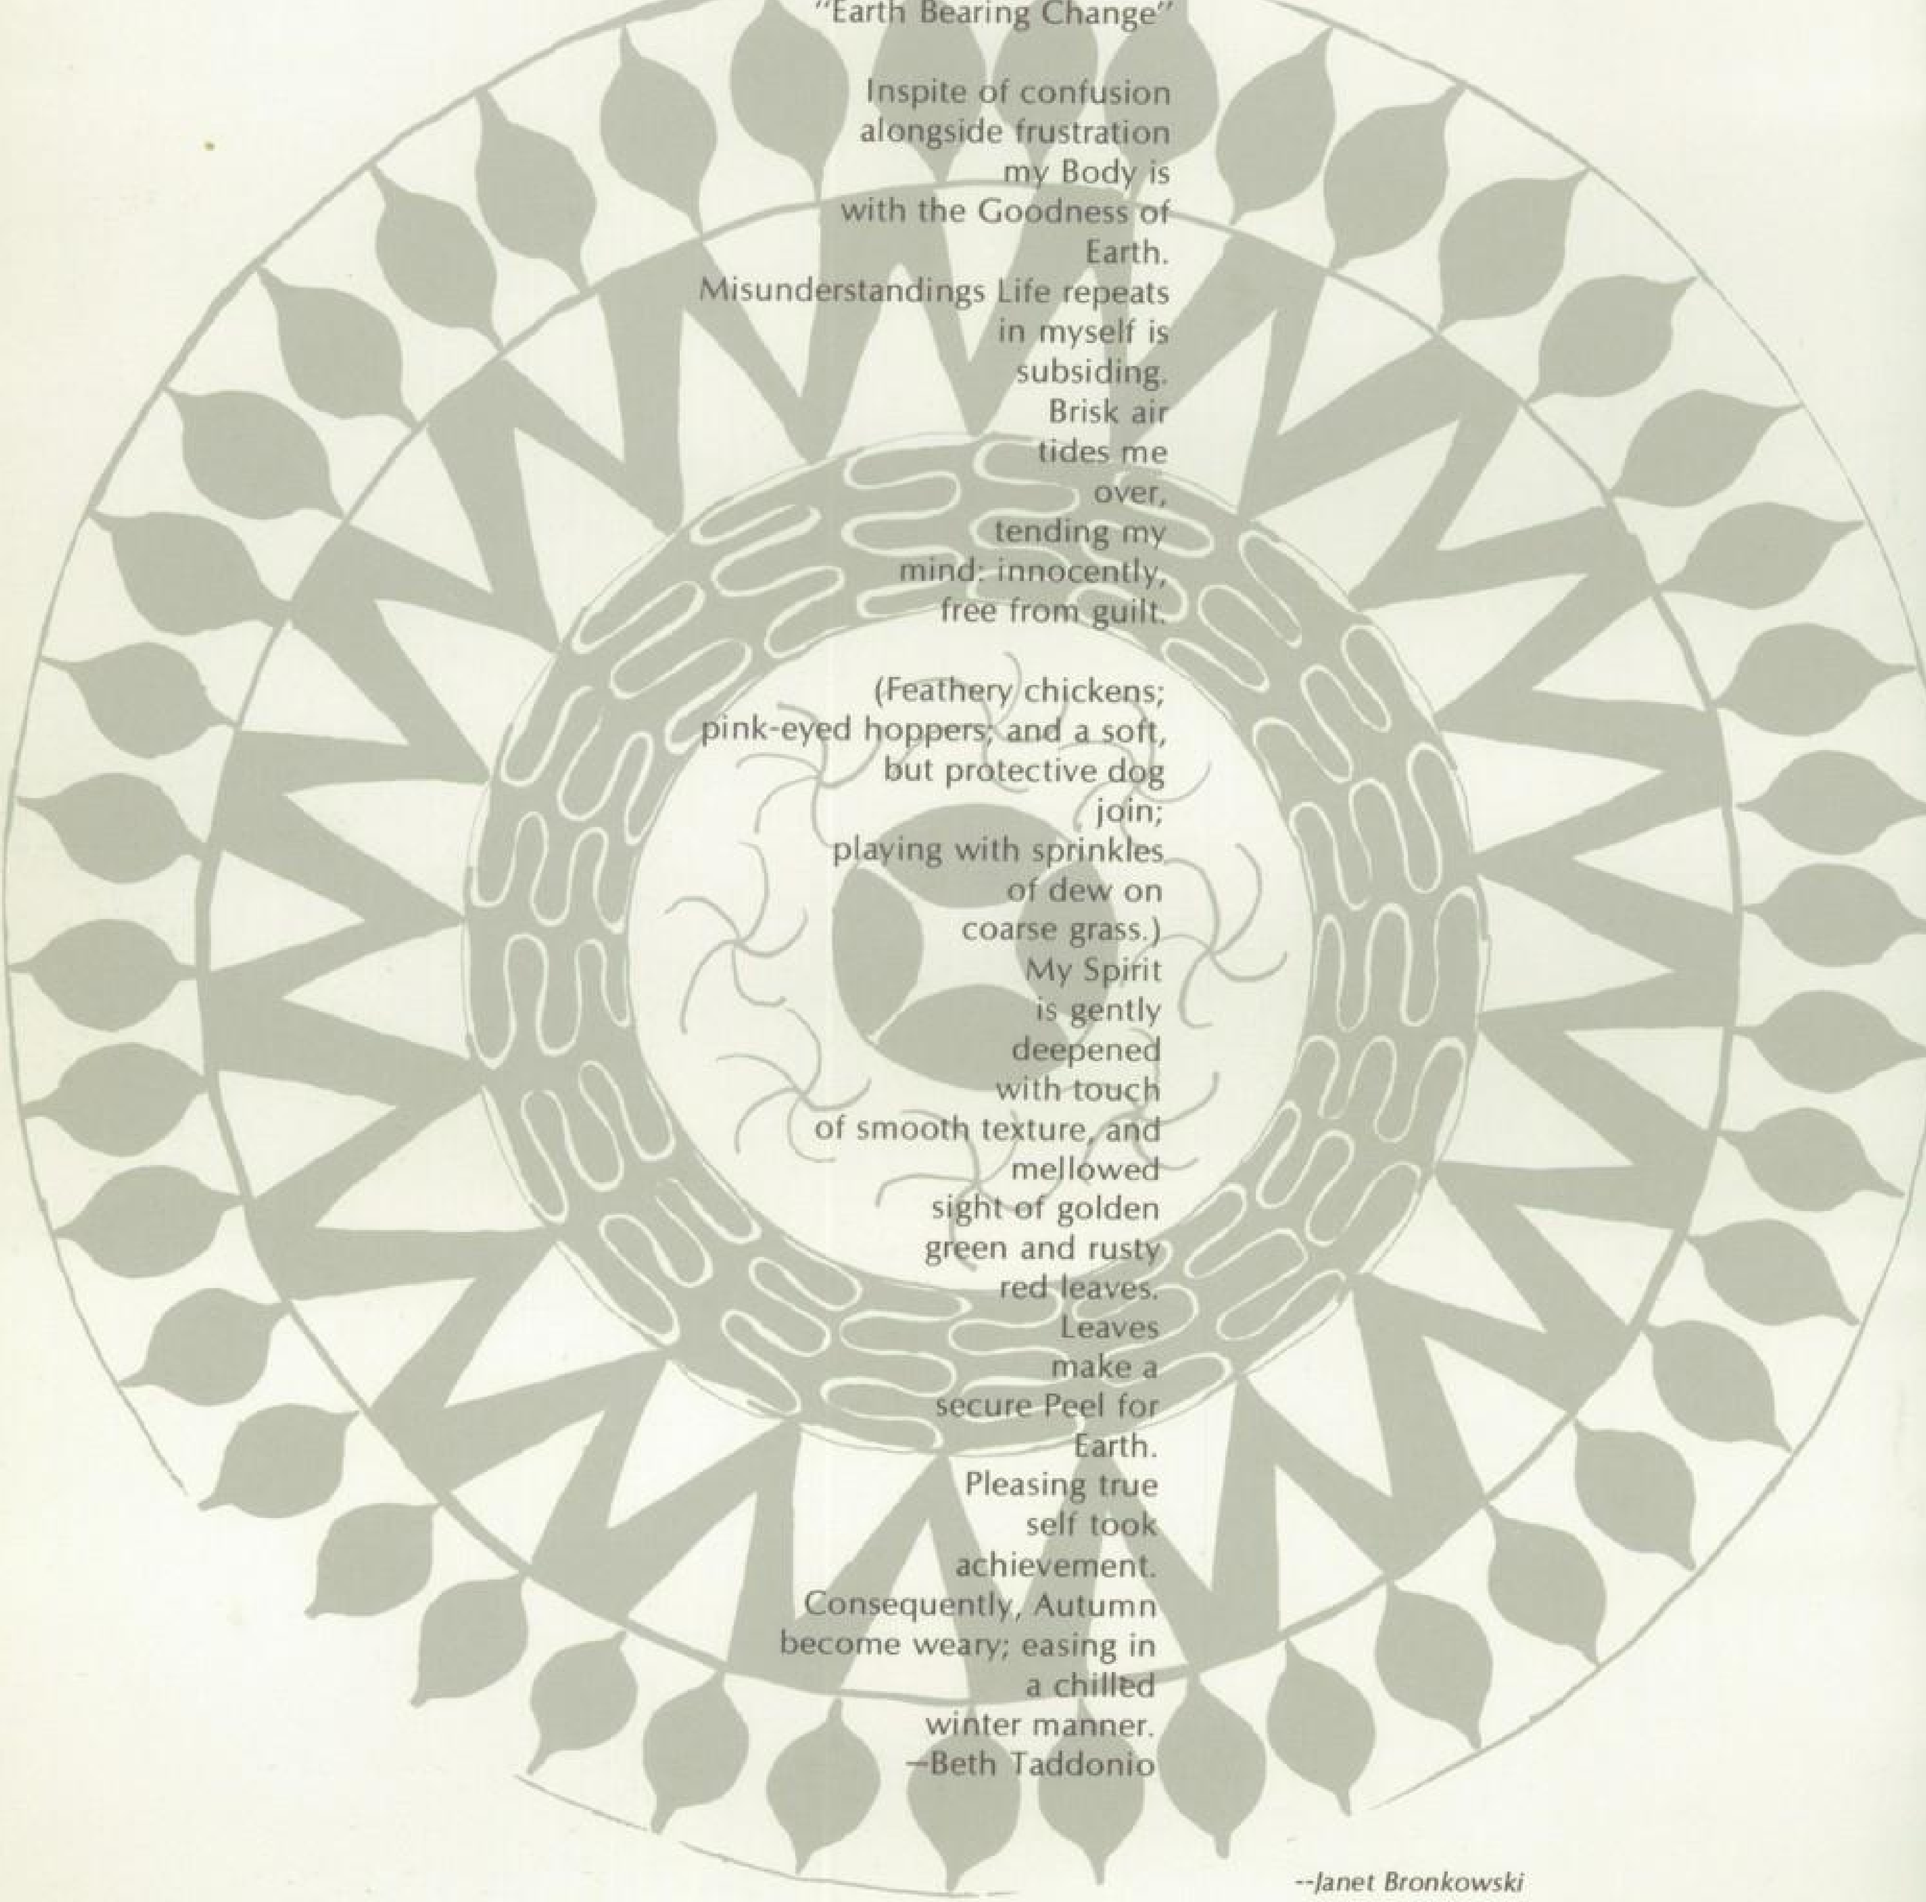

Will the things that held me back before now simply be my lore.
Should I find in myself what has always been there but express it well, is it fair.
Can I weep at my own misfortunes, and still hold on,
can I cry for my own children when they're soon gone.
can I dream, really dream, or would I master self.

"Earth Bearing Change"

Inspite of confusion alongside frustration my Body is with the Goodness of Earth.
Misunderstandings Life repeats in myself is subsiding.
Brisk air tides me over, tending my mind; innocently,
free from guilt.

(Feathery chickens;
pink-eyed hoppers; and a soft,
but protective dog
join;
playing with sprinkles of dew on coarse grass.)
My Spirit is gently deepened with touch of smooth texture, and mellowed sight of golden green and rusty
red leaves.
Leaves
make a secure Peel for Earth.
Pleasing true self took achievement.
Consequently, Autumn become weary; easing in a chilled winter manner.

SHOOTING DREAMS

Where am I going?
What's in my head?
These are my thoughts
As I lie on my head.

I dream of tomorrow,
The day when I'll die,
The time I won't have to Live with a lie.

My soul walks on waves,
It crawls through the earth,
It searches the sun-skies
For a joyous rebirth.

A rebirth of love,
A new form of beauty,
An ultimate peace
To grow up within me.

So much for dreams,
Just like leaves on the branches
They fall to the depths
In huge avalanches.

Another year of similar disappointment.

That of winning.
The goal of winning was never reached and in striving for this goal the team learned what the word unity meant.

The dreams of a city championship became reality,
The one time sophomores grew to be great seniors
Dreams, hopes, and the dreams again was no longer can you hear me?

I try to communicate
But I am not understood;
I share with you
The same emotions and incentives,
But because I speak a bit differently
Or act strangely in your eyes,
I am considered alien.
Maybe it is because I am more advanced
In years and wisdom
Or just that I represent authority
That I am not understood.

the revival of hope

At times I feel this is all a waste.
Why should I try to help others?
They never seem to appreciate my work.
But then I spot a positive reaction
And again realize why I haven't given up.

my today is their future

My work today builds their future,
I cannot let myself fail,
for they will be the leaders of tomorrow.
But so many times I feel abused and wasted
I could care less about my ambitions.
But I must fulfill my duties because I have signed a contract with myself.

the challenge is theirs

I can only present the challenge.
If it is rejected
I can stop and review
To see why it does not inspire,
But I cannot force its acceptance.

I must be met halfway

In front of me,
I see many faces.
Some earnest, some sleepy,
Most hungry for knowledge;
I want to help each one,
But they must come half-way.

using knowledge to progress

Knowledge—
We cannot tell precisely
When it is acquired, or why;
Or how seemingly insignificant
Concepts can become of value to our lives.
Only through this enlightment
Our mind expands

"How long have you had this problem?"
It all started when some wise guy said "Hey Kiddo, why don't you go pick some tomatoes, I'm hungry." From then on, it was nothing except Freddie and the Migrant Workers. Then the janitor said we didn't rate high enough to plant a pencil sharpener in the backroom. After six weeks of Mrs. Hypo, out of the blue came a chorus of Rhee-ee-e's and the chief was welcomed back with open arms. The year's greatest accomplishment was the new deadline motto: Better Never than Late, or No News is Good News.

6 A.M.
Ba da da da da!
Ham on rye
Dot shut up.
You play baby
Girls I know your in here
You Zeczey fool
It's something like a dill pickle
This material just isn't going to work
J-E-S-U-S!
"Will the girls in the back stand up"
Chick-a-boom, Chick-a-boom the thundering three . . .
Ready
Line it up
I quit
Good Luck Kim and Dot.
Farewell Debbie and Pam.

Kicks . . . How many?
1, 2, 3, . . . OOps—out of step
The tape broke again
Sexy
Tired
One more time
Applause!
Scared—where's the audience?
TA*DA-BOOMP!!
Julie
Scarves flying!
Embarrassed—Scrub woman?
Practice! Practice! Practice!
Julie's watching!
Point your toes
And finally the audience claps!
Jesus Christ Superstar!

B. Duerringer, Drum Major.

Why am I here?
Am I really needed?
Or am I just one lost in the multitude?
Who will point me straight and take my arm to make sure my steps don't falter?
Whose shoulder should I cry on if the path becomes too narrow and crooked?
And whose hands will help me climb that final mountain?
Isn't there someone I can depend on?
Someone who needs me too?
Won't someone help me?
Will you?

only the beginning

We are children of this world.
The future is ours,
To build and plan for
As best we can.
In our own way,
Not that of bygone generations.
We each must make our own contributions,
Voice our ideas,
Strive to right what we believe is wrong,
And most important—believe in ourselves.

extending my reach

I am your firend.
Come take my hand,
And we can share many new experiences.
Don't worry if you are scared, because I am here.
We can help each other;

So let's forget our worries,
Come take my hand;
I am your friend.

I have much to look forward to it seems.
But will my time here be lengthy,
Or will it fly by as fast as the past?
I am often surprised by my new set of values.
A great deal of my previous priorities
Have drifted aside to admit defeat
To new inovations.
I am told this is a part of maturity.
Maybe, unknowingly, I want all these changes.
Nevertheless they will come,
And I will use them to my advantage.

I am but a fragment,
Surrounded by the public.
I can try to disconnect myself
from the crowd of people, but I find myself being shoved back Into the multitude of beings.
I have my own beliefs and my own ideas
But I am the only one who can hear them.
I strive to be heard,
But I am told to listen.
So I sit back and watch what goes on around me.
I join the neverending struggle to be heard.

i am an island

They say join in and get involved.
For me it's not that simple.
I want to do my part
But sometimes it's hard for me to express my ideas.
If given half the chance, as the saying goes,
I'd probably clam up and lock my mind.
As soon as I begin to feel relaxed,
I'll gladly do my share.
But until that time arrives,
I'll sit back and watch with awe
As others run the show.

When I feel my world is tumbling
There is one thing I must do.
Look myself in the eyes

no time to advise

I need help.
I can go to many people
to seek it,
But I will only find a very small number who can help me.
They say, "I can't help you,
I have enough problems of my own,
Please go away and don't bother me anymore!"
No one has ever asked me for help.
Of course then,
Maybe people don't think I'm qualified to give a helping hand.
Please, try me.

I feel it happening.
Within me, a warmth glows.
Growing, getting bigger and bigger,
Until I think I'm going to explode.
I cannot hold back any tears or laughter of complete happiness any longer.
I have been touched by human kindness for the first time in my life.
So, please do not be offended,
If I come up and hug you,
Maybe some of it will rub off on you.

destined to belong

Why am I separated from everyone?
It seems the harder I try
To get close to them,
The further apart we become.
Maybe the fault lies within me.
But it cannot, for I have tried my best.
I won't let this question terminate my fight.
I must continue my battle for acceptance.

I look upon a single blade of grass.
Alone, it maynot be able to hold ground.
But a mass of blades united
Can grip the earth for years.
People are much the same.
I, as a single person,
May be unable to survive alone.
But with friends to help me along
I can get a stronger hold on life.

Only when I fail to smile,
so other people see,
that I have another side
A serious side to me.
They think I am a constant clown
Who laughs at sorrow
And scoffs at pain.
Little do they know of how
I cry myself to sleep.
Or what it's like to want to frown
Or feel sad way down deep.
I hope it doesn't shock them much
When they learn that I,
Just like many others,
Often feel the need to cry.

one phase of my life

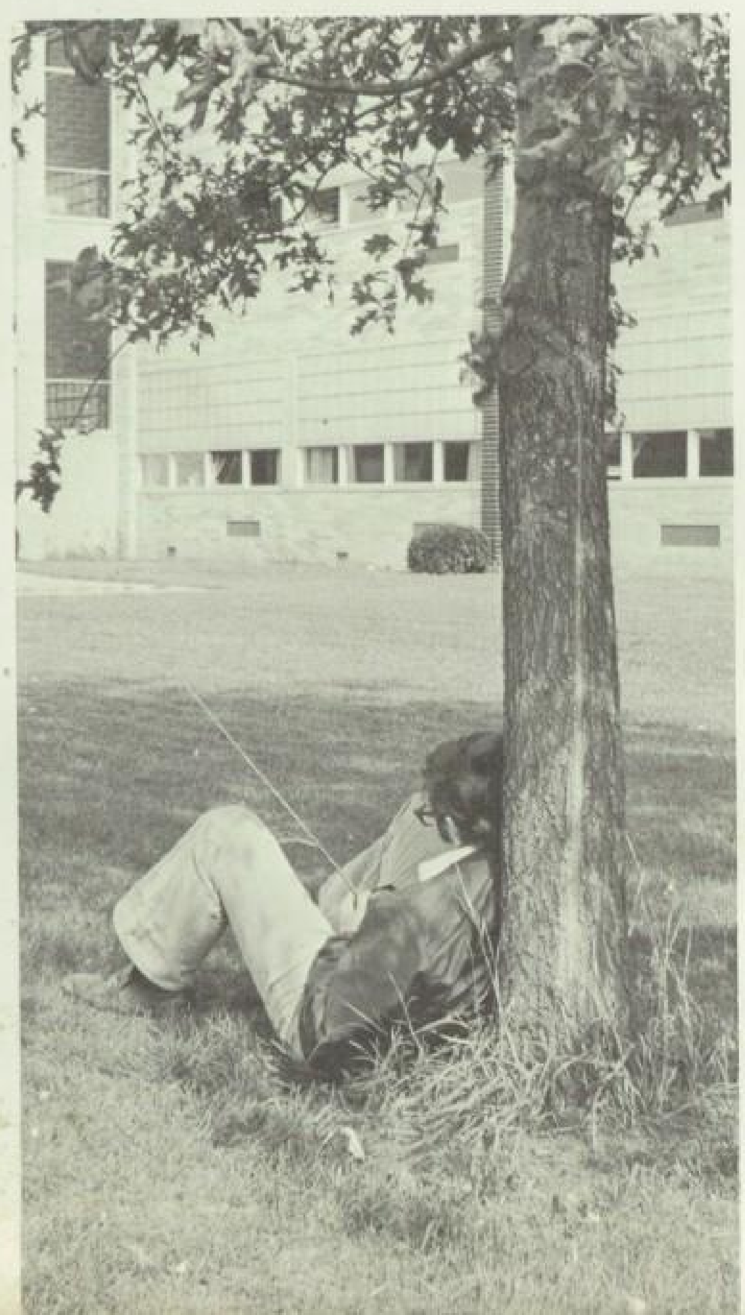

A phase gone by
More quickly than can be imagined.
A phase complete,
But not completely remembered.
When I do take the time to recall,
I find that I have few regrets—
A fondly remembered phase gone by.

a reflection of the past

As I sit and watch the activities around me,
I remember times that were similar.
Things remind me of my past.
Some happy, some hurting.
Some which I wish never were.
But they all have their place.
And it wouldn't be the same
if they weren't there.

expanding my ideals

How can I be certain?
Can I truly say I have accomplished
all I wanted to these past years?
Have I made the most of them,
or have I just let the time go by?
But whatever I have done
I know I have changed;
My ideals and beliefs have been touched by my life here.

reviewing the past

When I look back
at all that I've done,
I wonder if it was really worth it.
Way down there at the bottom of the pit
Everything was so dark and loathsome.
Then I looked up and saw a shaft of golden light that looked promising.
So I began climbing.
And now that I've reached the light
I look around at the familiar darkness.
Not yet discouraged, I continue to climb.

a quest only begun

Though others insist on looking back,
I persist in looking ahead;
The future is most important to me.
If I look back I will see my mistakes
And be unable to correct them.
Instead I shall look forward to new experiences,
And hope past mistakes don't repeat themselves.

Many thanks to C. Paul Kenney Studios, Enterprise School Photographs, Wm J Keller Inc. A special thanks to Mr. Roy Ticen, Central Union Terminal, Spree, Brondes and their Chicago express, Mr. John Urian, Mr. Katzman, the faculty, custodian and students of Start, Miss Kallile who would accept nothing but a quality yearbook, Mr. St.'s guiding hand, and staff.

To all the living creatures of Roy C. Start, we, the 1972 Shield staff, give to you with the utmost sincerity one more volume of your life, hoping that this yearbook will give to you as much pleasure as we received in creating it.

To my staff I ask that you accept my deepest thanks and my sincere wishes for the most brilliant and happy futures. No matter how hopeless the outcome seems, do not give up the ship, embryos cannot swim.
